RE: Rocky River High School Abatement Bids

Dear Mr. Green:

Subsequent to the second round of bidding for asbestos abatement at Rocky River High School, EA Group conducted a scope review session with the sole bidder (Precision Environmental) and investigated the reasons why the other prospective bidders declined to bid. Following is a summary of our findings.

Discussions with Non-Bidders:

Prior to the project walkovers and bids, EA Group Project Designer Scott Landis personally contacted prospective bidders and requested their participation in this bid. Most of those contacted did attend the pre-bid meetings. Following is a list of the firms we contacted prior to the bids:

American Asbestos Abatement
Cardinal Environmental
Coleman Trucking
GCS Contracting
Precision Environmental (sole bidder)
Safe Air Contractors

After the bids were received we contacted several of the non-bidders to discuss the reasons they declined to bid on this project. The reasons provided were as follows:

1. The extended project schedule (2-3 years) would tie up bonding capacity and potentially interfere with other opportunities.
2. Expectation that retainage would be held until project completion, which is 2-3 years out.
3. Some bidders indicated that the complexity of the project, due to the phasing and multiple alternates and options, would have required an extensive amount of time to evaluate the work and prepare bids. The time to do that evaluation was not available since this is the busiest time of year for abatement contractors.

Page 2

4. The project size did not seem to justify the potential risks, due to the project complexity and extended time frame.

Scope Review: Precision Environmental

EA Group contacted Mr. David DelRegno to discuss Precision Environmental's bid and their understanding of the scope. Specifically, we discussed the fact that part of the initial abatement scope had been completed and therefore removed from the scope in the second bid. Precision was aware of the scope change; however, given the complexities of this project, their bid calculation yielded a higher value than the estimate from EA Group.

Based on our scope review discussion with Precision Environmental, and discussions with the contractors that did not bid, it is apparent that the factors cited above will have a more substantial cost impact on this project than we had anticipated. When an estimate of the additional costs associated with the multiple mobilizations, extension of retainage period, potential wage escalation and other uncertainties is factored into the cost estimate of this project, the bid submitted by Precision appears to be a reasonable valuation of the work.

Discussion of Options

It is our understanding that the school district may elect to contract with the sole bidder, Precision Environmental.

If the bid is not accepted, the work will have to be re-bid. If it is re-bid, we would address the contractors' concerns to the extent practical to do so. The bid forms and scope would be reviewed to clarify the phasing of the work. We would also recommend splitting the work into two separate bids; the first half of the project would be bid in 2011 for work through June 2012, and the second half bid in 2012 for work through 2013. This would minimize the impact of the extended contract period.

Recommendation

Rebidding the project will result in additional costs, and there is no assurance that contractor bids at that time would be significantly different from the current bid. In our experience Precision Environmental can be relied on to meet its obligations and is capable of completing this work. It is our recommendation that Rocky River Schools accept the bid from Precision Environmental.

We recognize that the challenges in the bidding of this project are an unexpected difficulty and expense. We want to emphasize to PCS and Rocky River Schools that we are making every effort to align the abatement work with the overall project phasing requirements. We will be available to assist in further discussions or provide other assistance as requested.
