Mapping Out Our Week

Reading: Reading Workshop

In reading, we will be preparing for an upcoming government unit by reading about voting. While reading informational pieces, students will be working on rereading for information and determining the author's point of view (his or her feelings about the topic).

Writing: Writing Workshop

In writing, we will be working on the revising/editing process. We will then publish final pieces using the ChromeBooks. Students will also work on reviewing the concepts we've learned so far in grammar, as we prepare to begin our next grammar unit on predicates/verbs.

Math: Unit 5 – Measurement/Data

Students will begin the unit by measuring length to the nearest inch, half-inch, and quarter-inch. We will relate this to our most recent study of fractions. Students will also be introduced to frequency tables and line plots this week. They will be gathering data to create these tables.

Social Studies: Cultures

In social studies, we will finish our culture unit by sharing immigration stories. We will have the final culture test on Wednesday, December 3rd. A study guide will come home Monday. Science will begin again next week as well.
