Mapping Out Our Week

Reading: Reading Workshop

In reading, we will be working with sequencing and comparing/contrasting. Students will be looking at the genre of biography, as we look at the events happening in a famous person's life. Our Book & Movie Club has kicked off as The Wizard of Oz is this month's selection.

Writing: Writing Workshop

In writing, we will be writing complete personal narratives. Students have done a lot of work writing leads, learning how to come up with ideas, and practicing "showing, not telling" in their writing. This week, all of these things will come together as they begin to publish their story.

Math: Unit 3 – Place Value/Addition

This week will start off with a review of partial-sums addition and the teaching of traditional addition. Students will also work on the application of addition throughout real-life situations using word problems. We will also begin to review/teach subtraction methods this week.

Social Studies: Places and Regions

Students have learned about agriculture, natural resources, and industry. We will be talking about how these things are affected by humans. We will also explore how human modification changes places.
